fresh sea air had an exhilarating effect on him after a season's confinement to business duties. Last Tuesday Mr. Thornburgh began to complain of pain, which he attributed to insigestion. Doctor Satpler of Cinciunati, O., who was summering at the resort, was called in, and he said that Mr. Thornburgh was suffering from arterial trouble, but the symptoms were not alarming. Wednesday his condition was slightly improved and he was able to walk about the house. In the evening his condition took a turn for the worse. All the members of the family were by his side when he died.

Mr. Thornburgh was an active member of the First Presbyterian Church, having served on the Board of Trustees for fifteen years. He was vice president of the Franklin Bank and a member of the St. Louis, Noonday and Country clubs.

The negro attempted to run away and was knocked down the steps. As he was running down the steps the officer fired two shots and the fugitive fell to the ground. He recovered himself, however, in time to arise and distance the policeman.

yesterday morning, nearly caused the death of the young man. The bullet plowed a furrow in the right side of his head just above the temple. Had it struck his head a quarter of an inch to the left, the wound would probably have been fatal.

Mr. Smalley was left in charge of the house in the absence of his uncle, L. G. Wells, who is at an Eastern summer resort. Before Mr. Wells went away the young man asked him to leave his revolver with him, as he might have use for it.

Yesterday morning he commenced to clean the gun, He raised the trigger to see whether or not it worked easily, and as he was about to release it the door bell rang, and he went to answer it, leaving the trigger cocked. When he came back upstairs he picked up the gun to oil it and accidentally pressed the trigger, discharging the weapon.

That is what the Stag Club does once a year, and tried to do yesterday, but their plans were spoiled by their sisters and sweethearts, who know where they were going, and organized a surprise party. They swooped down on the to the surprise of the members. The ladies think that it is very selfish for a number of young men who are so "nice," to go into the woods for a whole day and have a good time all to themselves, so they planned the surprise. The "Stags" have abandoned all intention of again picnicking blithesomely on a sequestered sward, and though they don't tell everybody, they are secretly exulting over the fact that the young ladies descended on them so unceremoniously yesterday. It is rather doleful to acknowledge, they say, but they had a much gayer time after the girls came than before.

About 7:30 a. m. yesterday 250 silent and solemn-looking young men appeared at Union Station, and under the leadership of President William C. Essmueller quietly boarded the Missouri Pacific train for Fern Glen, Mo. They had brought with them all sorts of things to eat and quench the thirst. After they entered the cars they gazed at one another, but spoke not a

The marriage, according to Indian rites of Tall Elk-an Osage chief, worth $50,000 in his own tight, and helr to much more—and Mary Red Eagle, daughter of a wealthy Osage chief, is the culmination of an Indian romance.

Old Red Eagle and Tall Elk's father have been bitter enemies, and the father of the pretty squaw whose fortune is estimated at $2,000,000, would not allow him around the wigwam. But Tall Elk was persistent and he finally forced the reluctant father to give his permission. The wedding has just been celebrated

The wedding has just been celebrated after Indian fashion and the festivities following are now being brought to a close. Tall Elk paid over the forty-five ponies, the price which Red Eagle exacted for his daughter, and the girl's mother brought her out to the center of the square, mounted on a little pony clad in gorgeous red and blue robes.

She dismounted from her pony, which was turned loose to become the prize of the brave, who caught it. At that moment Tall Elk appeared, riding like mad in the direction of his bride. Her mother took off the splendid robes and left her standing alone, clad in a simple rough dress. The bridegroom as he rode by rapidly threw a blanket about her shoulders and carried her off on the horn of his saddle to his tepee, thereby completing the ceremony.

Our Collection of fine Cut Glasswares is replete with the best patterns and choicest pro-

Decrease in Zinc Ore Sales-Lead

yesterday were 163,777 tons of zinc ore and 18,208 tons of lead ore, as against 174,823 tons of zinc and 15,221 tons of lead ore sold during eight months of last year, showing a decrease of 11,046 tons of zinc and an increase of 2,97 tons of lead ore. The large decrease in the ore sales from last year was brought about by reducing the price of ore in June and July until a number of mines could not produce it at a profit, resulting in the shutting down of over one-half of the mills in the district. Prices then advanced and many of the mills have been restarted, but it caused all the shortage, as this year was ahead of last at the end of May.

The total sales for August, 1590, were 17,921 tons of zinc and 2,25 tons of lead, a decrease of 4,955 tons of zinc and an increase of 555 tons of lead.

The highest price paid for zinc ore last week was $25 a ton for 300 tons in Joplin, Zincite and Springfield. The bulk of the Oronogo product sold at $27.50.

Lead ore declined $2, selling all week at $45 a ton.
